

Media Release

Date: June 7, 2011
Subject: AMCO Online Training Portal, For Your Web Based Training Needs

For Immediate Publication

North Bay, Ontario, CANADA – Incorporated in 1985, AMCO's membership consists of 50 airports and aerodromes from across Ontario, ranging in size from international gateways, regional aviation infrastructures, and provincially operated remote Northern airports, as well as a wide range of business and associate members that support their operations. As one of the senior advocates of airport owner and operator organizations in Canada, AMCO has evolved into a strong organization committed to the sustainability of airports both provincially and nationally.

In 2006, AMCO began developing and delivering an important program to bring essential safety training to airports, aerodromes, and businesses from across the country. Over the years, we have seen the number participants grow, and we have listened to our members who have generously provided feedback on their experiences. With their input, we began developing a new platform, with assistance from industry leaders in web based training, which is not only easily accessible to all, but also provides the same great training, when you want and need it. Today, AMCO is pleased to announce a new chapter in web based training for the airport industry.

We will be hosting a brand new web based training portal, which will allow both businesses and individuals to access safety and aviation specific training to meet their requirements, schedules, and funding. As a business, you will have the opportunity to create a free corporate account, and provide your staff with important safety training when they need it most. As an individual, such as students, or people simply looking to learn more about aviation specific and safety training, you too can create a free student account, and purchase training when you want it. This portal is hosted 24 hours a day, all year around, which means that you will always have the necessary training when you need it the most.

Corporate accounts will allow businesses to not only provide training to full-time staff, but also to part-time, and contracted staff. As this platform is self serve, you only have to purchase the courses you want for your staff. You may want some staff to participate in Airside Vehicle Operator Permit courses, while others may need to take courses on Safety Management Systems, Transportation of Dangerous Goods, or even Fire, Forklift, Electrical, or WHMIS training. The AMCO Online Training Portal allows for just that.

We invite you to create your free account today, and see for your self just how easy it is to use our new platform is for you and your staff to use. You can run detailed reports to track your employees progress and understanding using our training and testing platform.

With the overwhelming success and feedback from our members, we look forward to working to meet your needs in the future.

Please visit <http://training.amco.on.ca> to learn more, and begin your safety, compliance, and due diligence training today.

- 30 -

For all additional information please contact Bryan Avery – by telephone at 1-877-636-2626 or by email at bryan.avery@amco.on.ca